If you are seeing this in your compilation output, it's caused by running `typst c main.typ` directly. Please use the build scripts instead. In fact, please read the README.md file (this message is created because I got a bug report from people who didn't read the README file).